In an increasingly complex and interconnected economic environment, Chief Financial Officers are required to navigate a rapidly evolving landscape of international rules, regulatory expectations, and governance standards.

This webinar will examine the intersection between global governance and international taxation, focusing on the strategic, operational, and reputational implications for CFOs and senior finance leaders.

The session will provide practical insights into how finance leaders can anticipate regulatory change, manage tax risk within robust governance structures, and align tax strategy with broader corporate accountability and stakeholder expectations.

Designed for CFOs, finance directors, and senior executives, this webinar aims to support informed decision-making in an era where tax is no longer merely a technical function, but a central pillar of global corporate governance.
